

ALTUSCIO NETWORKS ANNOUNCES ALTUCLOUD™ HOSTED SERVICES FOR SMALL BUSINESS

Atlanta, GA; March 15, 2010. Altuscio Networks (Altuscio), an Atlanta-based full service Information Technology company supporting small and medium sized business throughout the greater Atlanta area, announced their AltuCloud™ hosted IT solution designed for small business owners who have grown to need comprehensive IT services but don't want to make a capital investment in server network infrastructure and software licenses.

According to Mr. Silliman, "We have been working for some time to create a product that takes advantage of the big data pipes available to small business owners and recent advances in monthly licensing opportunities in the marketplace. It's now practical to centralize all of the hardware and software small businesses need to run their business at one robust collocation facility and set up secure access to all their applications and data using the internet. This allows them to run best of breed software on the latest hardware with virtually no upfront cash outlay or capital investment, with only one affordable monthly payment that covers everything they need. It's also great for companies who have old infrastructure in place that is in need of upgrade; moving to an AltuCloud™ solution will save them a lot of money."

Tom Raymond, VP Sales & Development states, "why spend the time and effort developing, installing and managing an internal IT infrastructure with all of the associated the up front and carrying costs, when we can do a simple needs analysis and create an AltuCloud™ plan that includes everything for one low monthly payment. Many companies desperately need the services but can't afford the cash outlay to get started. AltuCloud™ solves that. Other companies try to get by with outdated software and hardware for the same reasons; AltuCloud™ solves that dilemma too. It's easier and less costly for us to manage the infrastructure at our various collocations facilities, than it is working on customer facilities remotely or on-site, and we are able to pass that savings on to our customers while simultaneously improving their IT experience on a daily basis. It's a win-win situation."
